Science Literacy

Anticipating the challenges their children, loving called Stink Finks, will face beyond childhood, Nicholas wanted to merge entertainment with education.

He began by writing Malignant (novel), then with his wife, Kristina started Dharma & Eldon (children's book series), and The Moirae (new adult series).

This ambition influenced thier fictional universe, the memoir (Tangents) and videos about scientific literacy (Hourglass Science).

THE MOIRAE: series

The Moirae is a mythpunk trilogy fusing dark science fiction with a visceral reimagining of mythology. Follow Atropos, Lakhesis, and Klotho as they unravel the fabric of fate in a world where gods rule cities, monsters stalk the ruins, and memories are currency.

"I couldn't put it down; well-written, entertaining, and thought provoking!"

-C. Olearnrick

"Mind bending, informative, and entertaining. The author's attention to detail as he builds the philosophical theories are exceptional."

- Adam Sommer

"Malignant is a journey through youth that explores the reality of today into a future yet to come... you may find that your first impressions are not your last."

- Tim L.

A brilliant, insightful analysis from an educator who sees the threats to undermine our school system but also a hopeful vision for how to empower the next generation.

-Samuel Otten, Ph.D

MALIGNANT: a novel

Malignant is a contemporary, new adult, dark humor science fiction novel. Broken into the protagonist's four years at college, it is scattered with fragments of his life after he learns the truth about his past.

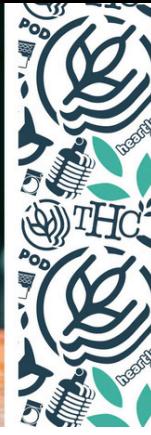

TANGENTS: memoir

Tangents is a personal reflection from over a decade in the public education system. Divided into six final lectures, Tangents covers form science to academia and parenting to politics.
